No charges yet in fatal Gilead shooting

By WENDY HANSKOM

Police are calling the death of a Gilead man Friday homicide, but no one has yet been charged with the crime.

Richard "Richie" Hutchins, 28, was found dead of a shotgun wound at 6:15 Friday morning. His body was discovered less than 75 feet from his home on the Northwest Bethel Road in Gilead.

David Chapman, 39, of Gilead, Hutchins' neighbor, was arrested early Friday morning on a probation violation, but police have refused to identify him as a suspect in Hutchins' death.

Witnesses have reportedly said that Hutchins and Chapman had been fighting before the shooting.

Chapman was arrested following a 2 1/2 hour standoff at his home in Gilead. He is scheduled for arraignment in Oxford County Superior Court in South Paris at 1 p.m. on Thursday.

As of late Tuesday afternoon, District Court Clerk Joan Millet said paperwork on the charges against Chapman have yet to be submitted.

Friday morning confusion

Police reportedly have not found the weapon which fired the fatal shot.

When police were called to Hutchins' home early Friday morning, no one was sure what had happened to him.

Hutchins went out of his house after hearing shots fired out back, according to witness reports. His girlfriend Susan Chapman then heard another shot fired out back of the couple's home. She called relatives and police asking for help.

Hutchins' cousin and neighbor

Tony Bennett said he had been at Hutchins' home Thursday night before the shooting "having a few beers, but I left around 9 (p.m.) when things got a little rowdy."

Bennett said he was called back to the home around 2 a.m.

"Susan asked me to help look for him," Bennett said. "She said he'd gone into the woods."

Bennett said when he got to Hutchins' home Susan Chapman told him Hutchins and her brother

Local pols get mixed grades on conservation

By MICHAEL DANIELS

Local Oxford County state lawmakers received mixed scores in the Maine League of Conservation Voters (MLCV) recently released scorecard ranking the 115th Legislature on its environmental voting record.

Locally, the highest score of 80 percent went to retiring state Sen. Jeff Mills, R-Bethel. Rep. Alvin Barth, R-Bethel, scored a local low of 20 percent, as did Rep. Phyllis Erwin, D-Rumford.

Falling in the middle rankings of the MLCV rating were representatives Rick Bennett, R-Norway (60 percent); Dana Hanley, R-Paris, (50 percent); and Ida Luther, D-Mexico (also 50 percent).

Retiring State Sen. Don Twitchell, D-Oxford, received a 40 percent rating from the conservation league.

MLCV scores are based on available roll call votes on key bills relating to environmental issues during the 1991-92 legislative sessions and, according to the MLCV, provide an overall indication of a legislator's environmental record.

Telstar teams look toward playoffs 6-2-2 and counting

By WENDY HANSKOM

Telstar High School's field hockey and soccer teams have both made surprisingly strong showings this fall, despite having relatively young teams.

Going into the final stretch of the season both teams' playoff hopes are alive and well.

The Rebel hockey team, last year's Western Maine Class C champions, has posted a 6-2-2 record, with two games remaining in the season.

Alpenhaus ist kaput

By WENDY HANSKOM

The new Mayville Tavern has already opened its doors to hungry and thirsty patrons, and construction of the Sunday River Brewery at the intersection of the Sunday River Road and Route 2 is moving along briskly, but it now appears that two additional eating and drinking spots planned for between Route 2 and the Sunday River Ski Resort will not be built—at least not this season.

Both the Alpenhaus Restaurant on the Ski Way Road and The Last Run Restaurant and Tavern on the Sunday River Road appear to be stalled by lack of finances.

The Newry Planning Board approved the Alpenhaus project early this summer pending proof of financial capability.

Plans called for construction of a restaurant with a pub, convenience store and rental rooms on a 10-acre lot near the Sunday River Inn.

The lot is currently owned by the Peter Kailey Profit Sharing Trust and was under contract to be sold to Lee Wilbur, who lives in Germany and owns a condominium in Newry.

But Kailey said the property is now for sale again.

"Our contract with the prospective buyers has expired," Kailey said, "and the land is up for sale again."

Jim Sysko, who helped design the building, said "It's a very questionable project right now. It's certainly not going to happen this fall. It may go in next spring, but that's not a certainty right now."

Last Run put off

Down the road, time is also running out this season for the Last Run Restaurant and Tavern.

Early this summer, David Barnes and Daniel Rubino, both of Wakefield, R.I., gained approval from the Bethel planning board to construct the 76-seat restaurant and tavern.

Ed Kennett of Kennett Reality, which sold the two developers the property, said "I believe they are going to build it next summer. Financing has been a problem. We have such a great economy going here that banks are having a problem believing it. So much is happening so fast that it's got the banks nervous. I think the banks may wait until next year to see what happens this year."

Chinese still on tap

Kennett Reality also listed and sold the former Bridge Street Bethel Gem Shop property, which the new buyer Rhea Gibbs of Greenwood plans to turn into a Chinese restaurant.

Remodeling has begun, and Gibbs said she's shooting for a Nov. 15 opening.

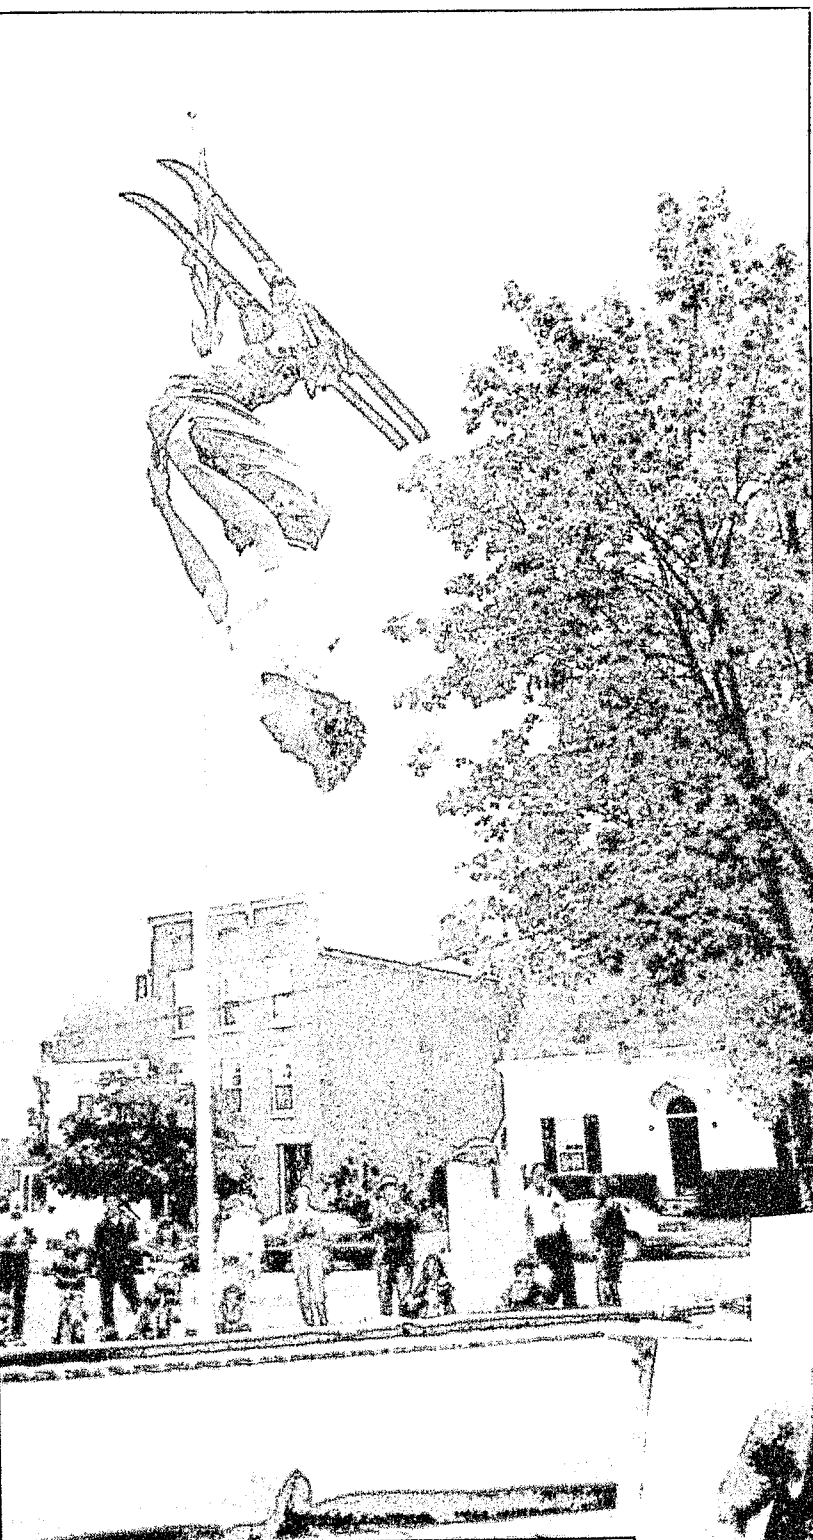

Henley replies to Jobs Bond story

In her Town Office column on page 2 of this week's Citizen, Town Manager Madeleine Henley responds to an article in the Oct. 11 Lewiston Sun/Journal Sunday regarding jobs created by Maine's Jobs Bond going to out-of-state workers.

The article used Phase Three of Bethel's Downtown Revitalization Project as an example of a Jobs Bond project that went to an out-of-state contractor—thus creating few, if any, jobs for unemployed Mainers.

Henley notes, however, that the Jobs Bond funds make up less than a third of the Phase Three financing, and that much of the remainder of the financing is provided by the federal Farmer's Home Administration—which requires that contracts be awarded on a lowest-bid basis, without regard to what state a company calls home.

The town manager told The Citizen that she has personally heard no complaints about employing an out-of-state (Berlin, N.H.) contractor, either before or since the Sun/Journal Sunday story, but she hoped to clarify any misconceptions that may have resulted from the story, or from the complicated state and federal regulations governing such contracts.

UPHILL EFFORTS TO OLYMPIC HEIGHTS

Starting at the bottom, participants in Saturday's Mahoosuc Arts Hike/Walk/Run tackle the trails at Sunday River Ski Resort the hard way. The Hike/Walk/Run was part of a busy local weekend that included the Blue Mountains Arts and Crafts Festival, ski sales and great, if a bit soggy, leaf peeping. Just above the hikers, low gears and lots of pain help mountain bikers negotiate a gut-wrenching uphill stretch in Sunday's Foliage Classic Mountain Bike Race, which concluded the season at Sunday River Ski Resort's mountain bike park. The popular lift-serviced trail system saw a two-fold increase in riders this season. Above the bikers, Leslie Krichko of Newry is the first woman finisher in the Hike/Walk/Run. The three-mile course wound across four of Sunday River Ski Resort's six mountain peaks, while climbing approximately 1700 vertical feet into the clouds. Krichko is a former Olympic cross-country skier. Above her, another Olympian, free-style skier Richard Pierce, demonstrates high-flying freestyle skiing maneuvers for an appreciative audience on the Bethel Common. Pierce, who narrowly missed winning a medal at the recent Winter Olympics, was joined by fellow Olympian Bruce Boleski, who performed ballet skiing on the moving ramp. Saturday's Mahoosuc Arts Hike/Walk/Run was sponsored by Sunday River Ski Resort, Groan & McGurn, Gould Academy, Crisports, Boise Cascade, The Sun/Journal Sunday and The Bethel Citizen. Bruce Nicholson of Freeport took the men's division of the Hike/Walk/Run; other local runners finishing near the top of their divisions included Kirk Siegel, Scott Jerome, Susan McBride, Terri Brady, Elizabeth Davis, and Brian, Kevin and Danny Zinchuk, all of Bethel; Lucy and Amos Rogers of Bryant Pond; Benjamin Davis of Newry; and Jeff and Janel Ippolito of Rumford. The ski show on the common was sponsored by Keenan Auction Company.

LET VIETNAM DIE QUIETLY

To the Editor:

Who the hell does George Bush think he is to insinuate that Bill Clinton will not admit to making a "terrible mistake" by protesting the Viet Nam War in a foreign country?

It has taken this country 20 years to heal the wounds of that war. Are we to begin arguing once more and placing blame? My father flew 35 missions over Nazi Germany and was shot down and captured on his last flight. In 1969 I began to take an interest in politics and Kent State and the Chicago Convention began to separate us. By 1971 I was active in the peace movement. The division that polarized this country was a frustrating and hateful experience that only the two camps that lived it can fully appreciate. My father and I did not reconcile before his death in 1983 and that is a pain I will have to live with. I am far from alone.

I have friends who served in Southeast Asia and many of them have ambivalent feelings about that turbulent period in our history. I sometimes question my own actions in the 20/20 vision of hindsight, as I know many veterans now wonder if they were right or wrong to serve.

My point is, the ultimate right or wrong of that awful war may never be revealed to mortals such as us. Many young men fought and died, and many protested with equal belief in the moral rectitude of their actions. If, in a man's opinion, the war was immoral here, certainly it was immoral anywhere. Should any man stop protesting immorality because he is out of this country? Ridiculous!

I voted for Mr. Bush so I feel as though I have some right to comment about his actions. Until this weekend I was of the opinion that George Bush wasn't turning out to be as good a president as I had expected but I respected him as a man. With his desperate attacks on Mr. Clinton's character, I have lost even that.

We can't afford another four more years.

ARE YOU BETTER OFF?

To the Editor:

During the 1980 Presidential Campaign Republican candidate Ronald Reagan spoke volumes when he touched the pulse of the American electorate with his famous question "are you better off than you were four years ago?" Voters undecided at this juncture of the 1992 Presidential campaign should respond to this query without reservation.

Contrary to the political hyperbole, character is not the issue most pressing to the electorate. Americans will vote on an issue that affects their lives much more definitively: the economy.

Millions of Americans have lost their sense of economic security with personal investments, pensions, and savings diminishing with little if any return. Home ownership, the bedrock of a family's asset base, is being devalued in a soft market fueled by a recession that Republicans and some economists believe ended last year. Voters fearing job loss resist the temptation of consumer purchasing by keeping their checkbooks closed, thereby stalling America's engine of business recovery and expansion. The electorate continues to fear that "things may get worse."

President Bush, who only recently acknowledged the anger of the electorate and the pain of this recession, touts himself as the candidate of "entrepreneurial capitalism" and small business. If the last four years are any indication of the next four years, should this administration be re-elected, investors wishing to become small business entrepreneurs need only buy a big business and wait.

This November all Americans should ask themselves Ronald Reagan's rhetorical question--and then vote accordingly.

ACOUSTICS GOOF

To the Editor:

Thank you for printing my letter in the Sept. 30 paper. Where I mentioned the acoustics of Portland City Hall it should have read "not noted for its acoustics."

Those who have attended events there, especially musical, have long known how unsatisfactory the reproduction of sound has been. Finally as reported almost daily lately, work has been started on the auditorium and the problem of improving the acoustics has been engaging their attention.

Several readers of The Citizen read the letter and spoke to me about this.

Many years ago when Bethel's famous musician, Dr. William Rogers Chapman, was holding his Maine Music Festivals there, he complained about the exceedingly poor acoustics, as have many other artists who have appeared there in concerts.

ratings included solid waste/plastic rings and plastic bags, the land acquisition bond, motor vehicle efficiency and emissions standards, MLCV in state parks, smoking in public places, LURC subdivision rules, energy standards, coal-fired power plants and citizen enforcement of environmental laws.

In the ten votes tallied by the MLCV, local House members were unanimous in their opposition to a bill that would have given private citizens the right to initiate legal environmental enforcement actions, and to a bill which strengthened criminally enforcement of the state's environmental laws.

They also opposed unanimously a bill which would have prohibited the use of all-terrain-vehicles in state parks (Rep. Bennett was counted absent on the ATV bill).

All three bills were supported by the conservation league.

Barth and Erwin also supported bills which the MLCV claimed weakened the state solid waste laws regarding plastic bags and plastic rings.

The measures were opposed by the remaining area representatives, and by the MLCV.

Most local representatives sided with the MLCV in supporting legislation to promote motor vehicle efficiency and to establish a motor vehicle inspection program.

Only Hanley opposed the emissions program, while Erwin voted against the efficiency requirements. Barth, Erwin and Luther also supported an amendment that loosened the subdivision laws of the Land Use Regulation Commission.

Bennett and Hanley opposed the weakening, which the MLCV claimed "will result in the subdivision of over 10,000 acres of Maine forest land."

With elections less than three weeks away, MLCV Board member Marshall Burk of Winthrop said: "Citizens will be better informed when casting their ballots on Nov. 3

LAND-TRUST PRESENTATION--Kent Wommak, executive director of the Maine Chapter of the Nature Conservancy, spoke last Sunday, at the fourth annual meeting of the Mahoosuc Land Trust at the Moses Mason House. Wommak stressed the work of the conservancy and Maine's 80 local land trusts in protecting natural habitat in Maine, and the Conservancy's recent purchases of migratory bird habitat in Central America, where many of Maine's warm weather birds winter. New board members were also elected at the annual meeting. They include: Robin Zinchuk, John Bayerlein, Paul McGuire, and Bonnie Pooley. The Mahoosuc Land Trust auction on Saturday night was attended by 40 people, many of whom walked away with big bargains. Dave Murphy was auctioneer. All purchase monies from the auction directly support local conservation efforts and the stewardship costs of the Trust's existing properties.

State House malfeasance

By MIKE BROWN

The taxpayers of Maine should file a class action suit against their elected state officials for malfeasance in office.

The fact is that the present Legislature of this state is dysfunctional, impotent, inept and a sham of effective, democratic government.

Not that there is a conspiracy among the 181 members of the Legislature and a Governor to intentionally defraud the electorate. Legislators are basically honest individuals that usually represent the majority thinking of their district constituencies. But when they leave their home grounds and regroup in Augusta, there is a political metamorphosis under the glow lights of entrenched leadership.

When legislators cross the public moat into the castle of the legislative oligarchy, a sudden change occurs. On rare occasions it's for the betterment of representative government. The transition of late has been for worse and worse state governments.

The recent fiasco of an extended special session on worker's comp reform is a standard example of malfeasance in office. Maine sits right atop the rip-off pole of worker's comp. Because of a special interest consortium of labor groups, the Democrat control of legislature and an obscene band of lawyers form both camps stealing funds in the amount of $60 million a year from injured workers' claims, Maine has authored the worst worker's comp joke in the nation.

Maine does not have an injured worker compensation program. It's an unemployment program, an unprecedented colossal surlax on Maine industry that has created a devastating business climate in Maine.

Governor John R. McKernan, Jr., for all his political negatives, has attempted for six years to reform Maine's comp sham. For all those six years the Democrats led by House Speaker John Martin and Senate President C.P. Pray, have fought reform and the Governor.

if they have information about their legislators' voting record. Many legislators talk about conservation, but it is important for Maine voters to know how their elected representatives actually voted."

The MLCV describes itself as "an independent, non-partisan group of prominent Maine conservationists, organized to protect environmental quality through the electoral process."

Environmental ratings of the legislature have been prepared by the Maine group since 1986 with a notable consistency in lawmakers scores. Board member, James St. Pierre of Readfield said, "Legislators tend to vote regularly for or against the environment with very few exceptions."

Copies of the voting record may be obtained by sending a stamped self-addressed envelope to MLCV, P.O. Box 5271, Augusta, Maine

Candidates forum tonight

The Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce has scheduled a candidates' forum for tonight (Wednesday) at 7 p.m. in the lecture room of Telstar High School.

As of Tuesday, the following candidates had said they planned to attend: Reps. Barth and Hanley, House candidate Rockie Graham, and Senate candidates Carl Hansen and Jim Wilfong (Wilfong and Hanley are running for the District 15 Senate seat of retiring Sen. Don Twitchell).

SAM backs Barth

State Rep. Al Barth has received the endorsement for re-election by the Sportsman's Alliance of Maine. In making this announcement President Jeffrey W. Jones said, "The Political Action Committee of SAM is pleased to endorse your candidacy to the Maine House of Representatives. Your record and questionnaire responses show that you are truly deserving of this endorsement. We look forward to working with you in the upcoming Legislative Session to continue to protect and promote the Maine heritage of hunting, trapping, fishing, and the shooting sports."

"Having been a hunter and fisherman all my life, I look forward to working with an organization such as SAM," said Barth. "SAM has an excellent record for encouraging education of both sportsmen and women and landowners to the benefit of all," Barth said.

Barth is the incumbent candidate for the State District 429 House seat.

FROM THE

Bethel Town Office

I would like to take this opportunity to clear up any misunderstanding stemming from the Bonnie Washuk's Lewiston Sun/Journal Sunday article of October 11, 1992 regarding Jobs Bond money going to out-of-state firms.

I want to make it clear that the town of Bethel supports the Jobs Bond Program as written. The majority of Bethel voters approved the bond last June, three of the four applications for jobs bond grants that Bethel submitted won awards, and the town has fully complied with the intent of the Jobs Bond Program to provide work opportunities to the citizens of Maine.

Bethel won three grants, two of which are projects funded only by the town and the Jobs Bond Program. Both of those projects were awarded through the bid process to Maine companies. The third project, which is the water-sewer-road reconstruction project referred to in the article, has multiple funding sources, including the Farmer's Home Administration Water and Waste Disposal program--which requires with very few exceptions that low bidders must be awarded contracts.

In my conversation with Ms. Washuk, I explained that the Jobs Bond language was as strong as it could be and still allow towns to combine funding from several sources. Had the legislature excluded out-of-state firms from the bid process, federal funding such as Farmers Home Administration could not be used.

The Jobs Bond Grant accounts for only 29 percent of the cost of Phase Three of Bethel's sewer project. Had the town been unable to tap other funding sources, this project would have cost the property owners of Bethel a lot more, and most likely would have been delayed by several years. Since the work is included in a consent agreement between the town of Bethel and the Maine Department of Environmental Protection, a delay would have been very troublesome.

Finally, I would like to point out for The Citizen's readers, as I did for the Lewiston newspaper's reporter, that the lowest bid received from a Maine firm was $76,502 higher than the bid received from Couture Construction, and that the Longchamps & Sons' bid referred to in the article was the highest of four bids, at $840,488--more than 16 percent higher than the Couture Construction bid of $722,930.

In addition, Couture Construction has agreed to the greatest extent possible to hire Maine subcontractors and to purchase materials from Maine suppliers. Indeed, prior to winning the Jobs Bond contract, Couture was already the contractor on the town's lower Main Street project (also awarded on a lowest bid basis), and on that project the company has hired local whenever possible--not due to a contractual clause, but because it makes good business sense to do so.

From the Bethel Police log:

Juveniles harass diners; ski banners swiped

Bethel police responded to several complaints of rowdy juveniles near the Four Seasons Inn Sunday evening. At 7:14 p.m. an inn employee told police several juveniles were sitting on the stone wall between the inn and Carmela's. Police asked them to stay off the wall. Later, around 9 p.m., an inn employee called police again and reported that several juveniles were making obscene gestures at his customers. When police got there the juveniles were gone. About an hour later a Bethel house resident said she saw a loud, large group of teens heading toward Spring Street. Police stopped the group of a dozen juveniles and told them they could be arrested for disorderly conduct if police received any further complaints about them. Saturday morning, Steve Keenan reported the theft of three ski banners from the Keenan Company on Main Street. Keenan estimated the value of the banners at $450. Police also made three arrests last week. Last Monday, Kelly Ridley, no age, no residence noted, was arrested for operating after suspension for failure to pay a fine. On Wednesday, Randy Albert, 27, of Bethel was arrested for outstanding warrants—two failures to pay fines and for operating after suspension, habitual offender. Also Wednesday, Douglas Grover, 29, no residence noted, was arrested for driving with a license expired over 30 days. In other police news last week, Michael McAllister of Locke Mills reported hitting a deer Thursday on the Northwest Bethel Road. The deer ran into the woods. The Warden Service was notified. On Friday, Bethel police were asked by the Oxford County Sheriff's Department to secure a homicide scene in Gilead. A Bethel police officer was on the scene from 3 a.m. until 3 p.m. Saturday police secured a stop sign on the Route 26 cloverleaf that had been knocked over by a vehicle. The Sudbury Inn reported a fight Monday night. When police arrived on of the subjects had left and the other was on his way out. No arrests were made. Monday police also responded to a complaint of an intoxicated juvenile, which a Carmela's employee wanted removed from the premises. The juvenile told police he had found the alcohol he had consumed. A pat-down of the juvenile produced drug paraphernalia, according to Police Chief Dale Bellman.

Shooting

David Chapman had continued drinking and gotten into a fight over an arm-wrestling match.

"They got arm-wrestling," Bennett said, "and David beat Richie. Then they got fighting and Richie got the best of (Chapman) and kind of embarrassed him. David went home and called Richie and they made some kind of agreement to meet out back. Then (those in the Hutchins house) heard two shots out back and Richie ran out into the woods. Then they heard another shot. They said they heard a loud moan and then started calling for Richie."

Oxford County Sheriff's Department deputies were on the scene at 2:50 a.m. They spent the next 2 1/2 hours trying to talk Chapman out of his trailer, located about a quarter-mile behind Hutchins' home. Deputies contacted Chapman by telephone in an effort to draw him out of the trailer, officials said.

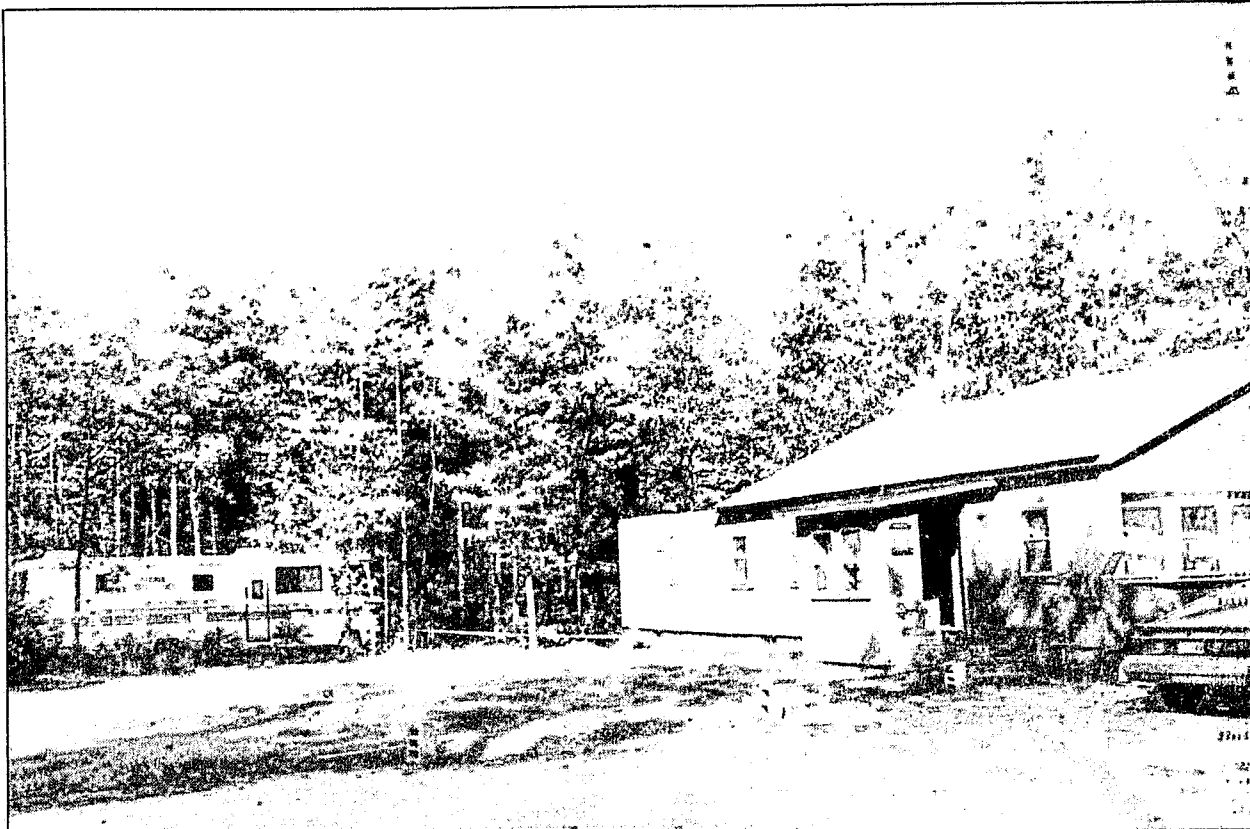

Chapman came out at about 5:30 a.m., police said, and was arrested on a charge of violating his probation by consuming alcohol.

Search went on

While police were talking Chapman out of his trailer, Hutchins relatives were searching the surrounding area for him.

Bennett said when Susan Chapman called him to help search for Hutchins, he did not believe Hutchins had been harmed. Following a four hour search, however, Bennett and Jeff Chapman, David Chapman's brother, found Hutchins' body near a brush pile in back of Hutchins' home.

"We were calling for him and walking up the mountain trails and searching the swamp with flashlights," Bennett said. "Around six Jeff and I decided to go out again. We found the body out back of the house. We must have walked by him five times during the night. The front of his sweatshirt was all torn up. He couldn't have felt anything. His eyes were still open and he had a cigarette in his hand. There was a HOMICIDE SCENE—The Maine State Police Mobile Crime Unit was parked beside Richard Hutchins' and Susan Chapman's home on the Northwest Bethel Road in Gilead most of the day Friday, while police began the investigation of his murder. A report of fighting and shots fired brought police to the scene early Friday morning. Below, Tony Bennett, back to camera, and Jeff Chapman, facing camera, found Hutchins dead from a shotgun wound, about 75 feet from his trailer around 6:15 Friday morning. Police are still investigating the crime. Hutchins' neighbor David Chapman was arrested Friday morning for a probation violation. He is scheduled to be arraigned Thursday. shotgun shell about ten feet from his feet."

Police did not search for Hutchins and did not know that a homicide had taken place until the body was found, according to OCSO Detective James Miclon.

Hutchins had a habit of taking off into the woods away from police, Miclon said.

Bennett said his cousin had been in trouble with police in the past, but he said Hutchins "had been getting his life together in the past four or five years."

Miclon said he asked for the State Police Tactical Team to assist in the standoff with Chapman, but the request was denied. He said he had also asked for a police dog to search the area, but none was available.

A new school year--in France

Telstar senior Lisa Cross is spending the year studying in France, through the Educational Foundation for Foreign Study. This is the first of a series of occasional reports back from her on her year abroad.

I am spending my year abroad in the town of Feignies, France, with Manuel and Rosa Rodrigues and their two children, Cynthia, age 16, and Thomas, age 6. I attend the Lycee Pierre Forest, a school of 4,000 students in nearby Maubeuge.

I have been here in France since Sept. 5, and although I love it here, it is very different from America. The first thing I noticed--besides the obvious language differences--is that almost all of the houses are made of brick or stone, not wood. In this part of France there aren't any forests and so wood is very expensive. Most of the land is used for farms to grow crops or as pastures for cows.

Since school started I've noticed many more differences. The school itself consists of five buildings with four floors in each building and 19 rooms on a floor. The classrooms are plain rooms, not lavishly decorated creations like at Telstar. It's like that because not only do the students change rooms after every class, but the teachers do as well, and posters appropriate for anatomy may not be right for Spanish. The hallways are not lined with lockers, either--students bring what they need in the morning and carry it with them all day.

A day starts for me at 7 a.m., when Cynthia and I leave for the bus stop. There are no school busses in France. Instead, students receive bus passes from the government and use the public transportation. Classes start at 8 a.m. and continue until noon, with a 15 minute break at 10. From noon until 2 p.m. is lunch, and most students go home because there is no cafeteria at the school and lunch in this country is very important family time. At 2 p.m. classes resume and continue until 6. I get home at 7 p.m. and have time only to do my homework and eat supper before I go to bed. On Wednesdays and Saturdays, however, school is finished at noon, and on Sundays there is no school.

Students here take more classes than in America, but they don't have all the classes every day. For instance, I have French four times a week, but I only have Italian twice a week. It's a little confusing, but also it's nice to have a break from classes.

Unlike at Telstar, schools have no supplies for students to use. There is no paper for student use, and you can't borrow a calculator or ruler from the teacher. Students also have to buy their books, and they are sure to take good care of them so the books can be sold at the end of the year or saved for a younger brother or sister.

The classes are each an hour long, and if you don't have something scheduled during the hour you're allowed to leave campus. Many students take the short walk into Maubeuge and have coffee at one of the cafes lining the streets.

The stores here are also very different. Although there are a few supermarkets like the ones in America, there aren't many. Most stores are either combination supermarket/department stores where you can buy a pair of pants, a TV, a loaf of bread and a dozen croissants; or there are little specialty stores where the owner comes out to shake your hand and you can buy a newspaper or a liter of milk, but not both.

But the entertainment here is mostly American. French teenagers know all the words to popular American songs, although for the most part they don't understand what they're singing. The movies are the same here as in the United States--in the theater in Maubeuge, "Far and Away," "Alien 3," and "The Hand That Rocks the Cradle" are all playing. The television programming is more French than anything else, but shows like "Rosanne," "Growing Pains," and "Who's The Boss?" are on frequently. Soap operas are also a great favorite, although they're many years old.

The people I've met here are very similar to Americans. They've been, for the most part, kind, caring people who work hard to make life better for themselves and those they care about. They love their country, their family, and their friends, as do Americans. The main difference between French people and American people is their language.

However, people here, especially teenagers, are fascinated by everything American. If something has English writing on it, depicts something American, or has a "Made in the U.S.A." label it will be bought quickly and displayed proudly. And, of course, they all want to talk to me. For many people here, I'm the first American they've ever talked to, and I get asked questions about everything. It's difficult sometimes because I can't always give them the answers they want, but I can't change the fact that Telstar isn't the high school in Beverly Hills 90210 and that all Americans aren't rich.

And just as all stereotypes about Americans aren't true, not all stereotypes about French people are true, either. Contrary to the beliefs of many, French people do bathe on a regular basis, do wear deodorant, and don't wear berets all the time. Also, French people aren't snobs. For the most part they're willing to help you if you have a problem, give you directions if you're lost, or just talk to you. And most people know a little English that they are very eager to try out on you.

The bus is an excellent place to meet people, since public transportation is used by so many different types of people. Cars are very expensive here, and gas is over a dollar a liter, so two-car families are novelties. Most cars here are Peugots, a French-made car, but there are also a lot of Mercedes, BMW's, and Renaults. I've also seen a few Fords, but the American cars are definitely few and far between.

Although you can get your license here when you are 16, driver's ed. and insurance are so expensive that many people are out of school before they get theirs.

A lot of things are more expensive here than in the United States. A Coca-Cola costs 10 francs (about $2) and a pair of jeans starts at 200 francs ($40) and climbs steeply, depending on the name brand.

Being in France is wonderful. It has always been a dream of mine, and although I do miss all of my family and friends, being here is everything I hoped it would be.

Andover budget sessions are postponed

Andover selectmen announced last week that budget committee meetings have been postponed until Oct. 14, due to lack of committee members. Anyone interested in becoming a committee member should contact the Town Office.

Gary Dyke Associates of Rumford was the successful bidder for the position of 1992 town auditor, with the low bid of $1,950.

Highway Department commissioner Wilbur Chenery asked the board about plowing church driveways, since private driveways are no longer plowed by the town.

Hutchins said there would be no plowing of church driveways. Chenery then asked about bus turn-arounds, and said, "You start plowing bus turn-arounds and you're going to be in someone's driveway, and somebody else will grumble."

Hutchins replied, "You might have to get an easement to go on someone's property, and we'll look into that. To make it simple, anything that isn't public property, don't do."

Contractor Martin LeBlanc assured the selectmen that the town office addition will be closed in this week, and all doors and windows put in.

Treasurer Alex Legault told the board that because the construction of the town office addition has been slower than expected, and because taxes are coming in faster than anticipated, he will not have to borrow more on the tax anticipation loan.

Fire Chief Ken Dixon told the board that "bits and pieces" of the dry hydrants have come in, and the hydrants will be "in before the snow."

The selectmen turned down a request from animal control officer Gary Vaughn to purchase a collar for barking dogs from him, and lease it out to people who need it.

Petition circulated

Kym Zitekewicz of Andover was planning to present a petition to Andover selectmen last night calling for selectmen to conduct more town business in public.

Zitekewicz said as of Monday she has 62 names on the petition. She accused the board of meeting privately to discuss town business and taking actions as a result of those sessions without a public vote, though she admits she has no proof.

The petition states the selectmen have violated the Maine Right to Know Law by discussing public matters in private, by accepting an incomplete bid on the town office addition and adding approximately $4,000 to the contract cost without public discussion, by firing former Administrative Assistant Rebecca Shachter without public discussion and without statement of fact, and by accepting Selectman Wayne Delano's medical leave of absence without public discussion.

Selectman Brian Mills and Raymond Hutchins had no comment on the petition last week. Selectman Wayne Delano said he has been ill and has only read newspaper reports about the petition, but that he regrets "that I did not get Miss Zitekewicz's approval before having surgery."

Ged Testing Resumes

GED testing in Maine will resume on Monday, Oct. 12 according to the Maine Department of Education and the American Council on Education.

The testing had been suspended on Sept. 15 following the theft of testing materials from School Union 29. The suspension of testing is a precautionary measure in cases where testing materials may have been compromised. The stolen tests have been replaced with different tests to insure that any questions and answers contained in the stolen materials would not again be used.

GED tests are administered through local adult education programs in more than 85 locations in Maine. Successful completion of these tests, including an essay composition, result in the award of a State of Maine High School Equivalency Diploma. Last year, more than 3,200 Maine residents successfully attained their high school completion credentials through GED testing.

Consisting of five tests in English, math, science, social studies and literature interpretation, the GED is validated with high school seniors nationally in the last half of their senior year.

To find out more about the GED testing schedule at Telstar High School, contact Catherine Newell at 824-2780.

NOVA plan looks at new building

By RICH PLANTE

The Northern Oxford Vocational Area cooperative board approved a request for proposals from educational consultant companies to develop the "NOVA 2000 Comprehensive Educational Plan."

SAD 44 Superintendent Dewaine Craig presented the report, which was written by the Superintendent's Advisory Committee. Noting that most board members hadn't seen the report yet, board chairman Norman Clanton asked Craig to go over the highlights of the request for proposals rather than reading all of it to them.

Craig said the project was outlined on page one as follows: "The primary purpose of this project is to develop a comprehensive educational plan for Maine Vocational Region 9 that can be presented to the Maine Vocational Region 9 Cooperative Board, State Board of Education, and to the citizenry of this region in order to gain approval to expand the vocational and technology offerings of Maine Vocational Region 9, including an appropriate facility in which to house the existing and expanded programs. Inherent in this project is the development of a sense of commitment to the proposal within various community and educational groups."

The project is divided into five phases: committee planning, program design, facilities and cost, writing the comprehensive plan, and dissemination. Under facilities and cost, the consulting company will be asked to develop capital costs for new and redesigned existing programs and new facilities for housing said programs.

In a matter related to evaluation of facilities, the board heard a report from New England Partnership Inc. on the former Rumford Center School and the former George Chevrolet building on Route 2 in Rumford. Following the public report on the facilities, the board went into executive session with New England Partnership and the Superintendents' Advisory Committee to hear additional information.

After Craig presented his report, Clanton said, "One of the things the board needs to do tonight ... the Superintendents' Advisory Committee put this all together and because it was time-sensitive as they put it, it has already gone out."

"However, the board really needs to act here tonight to approve this."

NOTES FROM

Adult Education

Winter Adult Education courses are already being planned by Director of Adult and Community Education Cathy Newell. Suggestions for courses or workshops are always welcome at the office, 824-2780. The program has an identified need for instructors who would be interested in offering computer instruction using IBM-compatible machines during the late afternoon or evening. Applicants should contact Newell.

Although most of the fall courses are well underway, several programs sponsored by Adult Education have a policy of open-enrollment throughout the year. The academic courses in refresher math, algebra, writing, and GED Preparation welcome new students at any time. The Adult Learning Center at Ethel Bise School is open every weekday morning from 9 a.m. to noon.

Students may attend one or more times per week and work on subjects of their choice at their own pace. A variety of computer materials are available at the Learning Center under the direction of Nancy Merrow. Lee Dolleman offers a developmental reading class on Thursday mornings at the Learning Center.

Evening classes in math and algebra meet on Tuesday nights at Telstar, GED Preparation on Wednesday nights, and Writing Lab on Thursdays. Nancy Merrow is the in-

Paul Thornfeldt of South Paris will lead the seminar and will cover how to collect, types of coins and their values.

Attendees will receive informational materials and will have an opportunity to share their interest in this fascinating hobby.

Telstar Guidance

Chairperson, Diane York, has announced that the SAD 44 Guidance Advisory Council will continue offering public forums to discuss family and educational issues of the day again this school year. Counselors in the district have long recognized the importance of regularly securing feedback from populations as essential to planning effective guidance and counseling programs. These informational exchange gatherings have been effective in doing just that.

The council, now in its fifth consecutive year, plans to offer three programs this school year. The first will be held at the Andover Elementary School, on Monday, Oct. 19 at 7 p.m. Advisory members are excited to offer a program that night focusing on family communications. Those present will exchange views and participate in round table discussions on this topic. Counselors will then share tips on good and bad communications, listening skills and timing of communications. Please reserve Monday, Oct. 19 to attend this special program. It's one you won't want to miss.

Future programs are scheduled at Crescent Park School on Monday, Feb. 1 and at Woodstock Elementary School on Monday, April 5. Reserve these nights on your calendars and plan to attend. Counselors are anxious to hear your thoughts on various social and educational issues affecting our lives.

Domestic Violence Month

Chris Cole, district nurse along with guidance counselors, Wendy Ford, Kathy Acker, Sally Hannon, Beth LaVallee, Dan Hart and Chemical Health Coordinator, Rodney Abbott are continually working together to address this issue as it affects the students and families in SAD 44.

At each level, these school personnel routinely, as the need arises, connect students and parents with the Safer Families program in Bethel and/or with other professionals at the Bethel Area Health Center, Tri-County Mental Health or Department of Human Services.

At the high school level, counselors address chemical health issues, stress and communications with students in Self groups. Personal counseling is available as well as periodic "time-out" space for students experiencing difficulty coping. High school personnel find "Peer Helpers", teens assisting teens, equally important in lending support and responding to difficult situations with affected students.

The Crisis Intervention Teams, fully implemented throughout the SAD 44 District last year are an effective resource for school personnel in dealing with serious issues facing the students and families in our communities. For more information, please contact any SAD 44 guidance counselor. They welcome your concern and feedback.

By COLISTA MORGAN

Do you remember the song, "It's a long, long time from May to December?" It sounds good but it's not true. On July 4 we cook our first peas and salmon and now it's time for goose and Christmas. We return to the valleys and hills and we are smack into what nature does best, autumn. All is so beautiful at this season. We gather weeds, bitersweet, red berries and other joyful things, on our outings, to make and decorate wreaths. For now a brief interlude, the season is full of fragrances and rich coloring.

Of course my flower gardens are kaput and I've pulled the plants.

High above the earth the majestic geese are flying in wedge formation winging their way southward, on the high roads of the sky. Many came to rest on our pond this week, so beautiful they were. Through the long centuries since the last ice sheet receded and left our sculptured landscape; the wild geese have answered two powerful calls, southward in autumn and northward in spring.

There is beauty in the maples flaming on the landscape.

The goldenrods have become gray ghosts, and the rich chocolate of the cattails (I call them exclamation points) fade to a thinner brown. Yes, it's the turning point of the season and the year.

Nature is always consistent. She keeps her laws and seems to transcend them. She arms animals to find their place and living yet arms others to destroy them. We will let Nature have her way for she understands her business better than we do.

Autumn, our eyes are bathed in incredible beauty; and no place is more colorfully dressed than my road and I love it all.

On Oct. 4 Marian Pulsifer was given a birthday party by her family at her home. Many of her friends and family attended.

It was a busy time at my home on Sunday for three of my nephews came to dig up my septic tank and replace the foundation to my woodshed. At the same time my house was getting new paint. That night some animal came to destroy, not help. It dug into my wall removing stones and dirt. I wonder what it could be.

Rena Curtis and I visited my brother, Ernest in Poland on Monday. His grandson and his daughter, Maxine visited us, also.

Stella Johnson from Maryland called on Gladys Kilgore one day last week. She has been here visiting her sister and husband, Harriett and Ralph Brown.

Bob and Geneva Tripp are putting new siding on their home. It looks real good. Carolyn and Walter Heino are painting their house as weather permits. Ivan Curtis from Massachusetts was at his camp at Lake Keewaydin over the weekend. Laurence and Mildred Dadmun were in Damariscotta one day this past week on business.

Our sympathy, prayers and thoughts are with the family of Phyllis Millett who passed away on Sept. 30. She was a good friend, wife and mother and will be greatly missed. She was very active in a lot of organizations and church business. Her daughters, Cynthia Bartley of Kentucky and Beverly Millett of Colorado have been here with the family the past few weeks, and will be leaving for their respective homes soon.

Mary Fox and Anne Wyman have been attending classes at Norway for more information needed in registering vehicles, etc.

Eddie Millett and Charles McCabe went moose hunting up in Greenville this past week and came home with an 800 pound bull moose. Stan Sampson and son from No. Norway were at Nelson's camp at Wilson's Mills and got their 700 pound moose at Lincoln Pond Rd.

Several people from town attended the Fryeburg Fair on Senior Citizens' Day on Tuesday. It was a cold but sunny day and they had a record crowd.

Jim Favor left camp on Wednesday afternoon for Windham to be with his sister before leaving for his home in Santa Barbara, California. He has enjoyed making new friends in the area and doing lots of hiking and taking in the Fryeburg Fair, and seeing the Fall Foliage during his vacation during the month of September.

Pat and Carroll Buck and daughter, Vicki Pike left Saturday to go to North Carolina to visit Mr. and Mrs. Steve Fox and to welcome the new grandson. His name is Kyle Michael Fox. Tonya and Steve Fox are the proud parents.

The Stoneham Volunteer Firemen took part in the Fireman's Muster at the Fryeburg Fair Sunday. They were one out of 22 teams and the farthest team was from Rhode Island. They were fourth in the wet hose contest and seventh and eighth in two other fields. This was real good considering the few members taking part that have had more experience.

Albert and Eleanor Nelson and Walter and Carolyn Heino were at the Nelson's camp at Wilson's Mills on Wednesday and Thursday of this week. The trees and mountains were just beautiful. While there, Walter got to see a moose and young Ed Millett saw a bear but the rest of us didn't see anything of animals, except partridges and we had some of them for our breakfast and weren't they ever good.

The weeks keep rolling by and winter is fast approaching. I did get 27 quarts of relish put up but so far the banking and storm windows are not on. Gerry Shimamura took John and I to the Common Ground Fair on Saturday. It was not the best of days because we had just heard about John's cousin, Arthur's daughter, Brenda and her husband Jon and Marcia and bring Marcia down for a visit. Monday Marcia and I visited Elvira at Market Square and Thelma Merrill at Ledgerview where I met Thelma's stepson who scolded me a bit for my lack of a news column. Oh, yes, Saturday while we were in Bangor, Ralph showed up for the weekend so he visited his aunt Carolyn Colby for a while. As he left Sunday afternoon, we hardly got to see him but he did help out with a few of the necessary fall chores so his visit did not go for naught and we were all glad to see him even for a short time. Donna Downs stayed overnight with us Monday and was a supper guest Tuesday. Wednesday I received a phone call from her telling me her husband, Ted, was in the Catholic Medical Center in Manchester, N.H. with another heart problem and she had to leave immediately for there. That has been the way things have been going around here. Actually there were more things going on but that's the gist of them and may explain a bit why the news doesn't get done.

And speaking of the news-if anyone out there has a yen to write and would like to take over this column I'm still willing to hand it over. I don't know that I am busier than anyone else but I get tired quicker than I used to and things take longer and I've been at it a long time. All things need a fresh approach from time to time, and maybe it's time for this column to get a new facelift. My daughter just reminded me that John and I are to celebrate our 38th wedding anniversary on Friday, Oct. 9 and wanted to know what we planned to do. After looking back on all we've done these past weeks and the schedule of things we need to do next week, I said, "maybe nothing" which brought forth the response, "don't tell me I've got to celebrate for you." She's not usually here on birthdays, holidays or anniversaries so she'd like a grand occasion. Maybe we'll think of something. Happy 90th birthday to Chet Kimball and we all wish you many more of them. And while I am about it, happy 80th birthday to Helen Chase. My hat goes off to these young folk, I'm coming up on number 60 which is enough to depress me!

North Newry

By GIL SEELEY

Service at the Newry Community Church was performed Sunday, Oct. 4 by Pastor Rodney Hanscom and daughter, Nancy at the organ. The message of the day was: "Forgive" from Isaiah 1:18. "Thou sins may be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow. Members of the "Newry Bowling Gang" who were at the Oxford Lanes were: Karlene Bachelder, Betsy Clark, Gil Seeley, Louise Telle, Doris Parent, Olive Anderson and Bea Lowell. Rona Powers was a guest and so was Jim Anderson. Of the "lefties" Karlene was high on the triples and also high on the singles with one string of 101. Of the "righties" Doris was high on the triples and tied with Bea on the singles. Karlene had six spares, Betsy one strike and four spares, Gil two strikes and one spare, Doris one strike and three spares, Bea one strike and two spares, Olive two strikes and one spare. All went to lunch and did some shopping.

The Newry Fire Dept. Ladies Auxiliary met Thursday night Oct. 8 at the Town Building with seven members present. President Brenda Wight opened the meeting, treasurer Nancy Wight reported on the finances, and secretary Karlene Bachelder took notes. The hats are ready for sale at $6 each. They are a very nice tan color with a little red fire truck on the front. They can be purchased from members and from the Town Office, and at the Maine Line Store in Bethel. A discussion on having tickets printed for a food certificate followed, more on that later. More food will be purchased by the Auxiliary to keep on hand for the firefighters when needed. Meeting was adjourned. The next meeting will be Nov. 13 at 7 p.m. New members are always welcome.

Quite a few Newry people took in the Fryeburg Fair last week and said it was great, so was the weather.

Quote, "No matter what we say or do, no matter who our next President is or whether there is war in Yugoslavia, the leaves will turn."

West Paris

By MIRIAM INMAN

Last Sunday the West Paris Muster Team took part in the Firemen's Muster at Fryeburg Fair. They won a third place trophy in the dry hose event. Those taking part were Ken Bacon, Danny Littlehale, Gregg and Walter Inman, James Hutchinson and Scott Audet. There were 22 teams participating.

Owen and Donna Melville of Woodland spent the weekend with her folks, Ivan and Ann Proctor.

Richard and Jean (Hibler) Glover of Pennsylvania were guests of Mason and Frances Noyes the past weekend. Jean was a former resident here.

The Historical Society will meet on Monday, Oct. 19 for a potluck supper and meeting. Supper committee will be Howard and Ida Gurney and Vernon and Miriam Inman.

The Historical Society gives people insights into Woodstock's past. What was it like here years ago? If we know something about this, we can get a better perspective on our present and future. The Historical Society is grateful to Ruby Emery for the outstanding research she has donated to the museum over the past few months. The public will benefit from it for years to come. And thanks also to Ray Burnham for the shelves to display Ruby's books. Everyone in the Society works hard for that organization. They should be congratulated. Francis and Glenn Brooks have given some items to the historical museum. Are you interested in current events? They will be history of tomorrow. The Woodstock Historical Society seeks to share information about our New England heritage with all. Plan to attend some of its meetings this year.

Franklin Grange #124 met on Monday, Oct. 5 with 27 people present. A thank you friendship card was received from Olive Davis. A newspaper clipping was read of Olive and Ellis Davis' engagement years ago. Herman Cole is in the hospital but coming home soon. His son, Richard Cole is home visiting. Viva Whitman is going back to Maine Medical Center on Oct. 16 for chemotherapy. Bertha Flanders is recovering. Anna Swan, new lecturer, presented her first program. Thought for the day-Anna Swan; opening song by all; reading on Grange origination-Lucy Ridley; musical selection-Richard Felt, Dot Canwell and Bertha Benoit; apple peeling stunt, four teams of two people, Olive's team won; solo by Lucy Ridley; solos by Harry Boyer; next meeting new programs will be available and it will be a Halloween program. Come in costume for contest; closing thought-Anna Swan. Happy Birthday song to Lettie Brooks; closing song. Next meeting is Oct. 19.

Stanley and Gertrude Andrews, former residents of Bryant Pond will celebrate their 45th wedding anniversary on Oct. 25. Cards may be sent to the following address: 135 Oakhill Village, 2620 Hwy. 60 East, Valrico, Fla. 33594. Congratulations to them.

Corneal Infections from Contact Lens

Red, painful eyes among contact lens wearers may be a sign of infection of the cornea, the transparent circle in the center of each eye. Inflammation and infection of the cornea due to improper contact lens care can cause other problems such as reduced visual acuity, abnormal sensitivity to light, and watery discharge from the eyes.

According to recent reports in the medical journals Lancet and New England Journal of Medicine, wearing extended-wear soft lens overnight increases the risk of corneal inflammation by 10 to 15 times as compared to day-time-only use. The risk of getting a serious infection from extended-wear soft lens is 21 times higher as compared to wearing rigid gas-permeable lens. According to Drs. Elisabeth Cohen and Jay Krachmer writing in Patient Care, the infection risk from disposable contact lens is not known currently, but such lens may cause less infection than the extended-wear type because they are discarded before significant protein and mucous deposits occur. These researchers make four suggestions:

1. Follow recommended measures for lens care.
2. Wear lens for only the prescribed length of time.
3. Remove lens if there is discomfort, redness, or discharge.
4. Be prepared to discontinue lens wear if necessary.

FRUITFUL PICKERS--Last Monday Lyon's Orchard on Grover Hill had over 4,000 bushels apples dangling off its trees. But in less than a week most of the apples have been picked, by a sixteen-man crew that included a dozen migrant workers from Jamaica. Orchard owner Herb Lyon said the crew filled a tractor-trailer truck load a day for four days in a row with over 1,000 bushels of apples. The Jamaicans work for Bob Goss, owner of Goss Orchards of Mechanic Falls. Lyon has hired part of Goss' crew to help pick his apples for the last several years, he said. "The Jamaicans do a good job, and you couldn't hire a local crew who could pick a 1,000 bushels a day," Lyon said. Johnny Miller of Copeland, Jamaica said he's been working for Goss for at least 19 years and enjoys the apple harvest. Miller said he's a farmer and raises corn and a few chickens at home. Miller said sometimes Maine weather is a little too cold for him and added he thought it was colder in the Bethel mountains than the Mechanic Falls area. Lyon said this year's crop is so good that 40 bushes of apples was harvested off just one of his older trees. "This is probably the nicest crop that I've picked here since I bought the place in 1954," Lyon said. "Most of the big trees had between 15 and 25 bushels on them." Lyon sells his apples to private customers at his home, to the Bethel IGA and in West Bethel at Nice Things People Make. Most of his crop, however, is sold to Goss Orchards, where the apples are packed and shipped to Florida. Some of the Jamaicans said they had been harvesting tobacco before coming to Maine and were planning to harvest sugar cane before returning home. Those picking apples at Lyon's Orchard this year include sitting: Moses Thomas, left, Donald Price, Johnny Miller, Malcolm Motherson, Elburn Brown, Clinton Dickson and Raphael Bruce. Standing: George Temple, Cecil Hutchinson, Ronald Gale, Osmund Campbell, Bob Goss, Francis Larrabee, Sr., Francis Larrabee, Jr., Linten Barrett, Clarence Tyner and Tom Betts.

IT'S IN THERE--Telstar Middle School student Tony Buker races down the field Thursday, above right, during an exhibition game with Gorham. Tony went on to score the first goal of the Rebel 3-0 win, below. Above, Quentin Buker tries to take the ball away from an opponent. Corey Koch scored the third goal in Thursday's game. The middle school boys are 5-2 for the season. Coach Dan Hannon said the team is currently ranked second in the Western Division of the Sandy/Andy League. If the boys maintain their standing they will probably play Mountain Valley for the Western Maine title next Tuesday, the coach said. The Rebels play Mountain Valley and Jay away this week.

it into the western Maine Class C playoffs depends on the outcome of the next two games against Jay and Leavitt--both formidable opponents.

Coach Gail Wight said Telstar has been the only team in the Mountain Valley Conference to beat Leavitt so far this season. Jay beat the Rebels 1-0 early this season.

"Our team looks real good," Wight said. "They seem to be pulling together, but the offense needs to score more. The games we have left are the most important ones as far as getting into the playoffs. There's a lot of heat points involved because they're strong teams. We won't know if we made the playoffs until we see how we do in these games."

Last week the girls battled Winthrop to a scoreless tie in two sudden death overtimes. Senior goalie Danielle Bernier posted nine saves.

The last home field hockey game is scheduled for today against Jay at 3:30 p.m. The girls are scheduled to play their last regular season game at Leavitt on Friday.

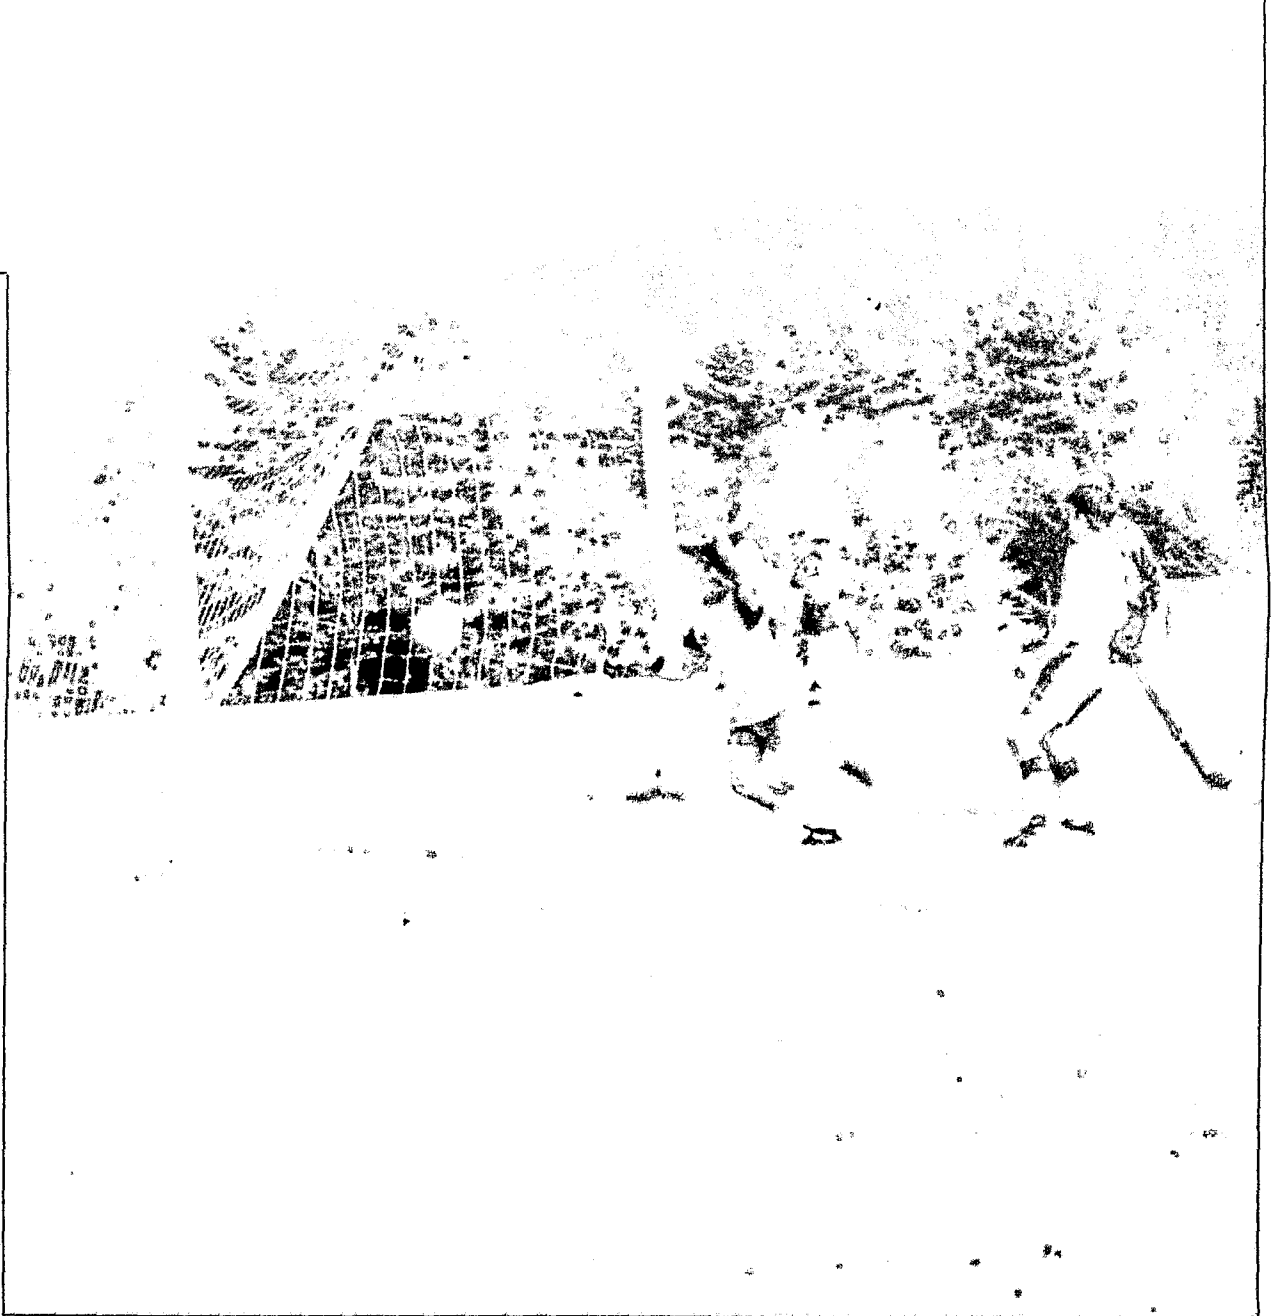

Boys also 6-2-2

The Rebel soccer team is also 6-2-2 for the season. On Friday, the boys rolled over Lisbon, for a 6-1 win.

Coach Bob Remington said the Rebels are playing well, but probably need to win their next two games to make it into the playoffs.

"It's really tough to make the playoffs in Class C in western Maine," Remington said. "Normally if you have a winning season you get into the playoffs, but not in this league. It looks like we're going to have to win both games this week to make it. We've got a good team, one of the best we've ever had."

The Rebels were scheduled to play Mountain Valley yesterday at home. In an earlier game this season the teams tied. Telstar will finish its season Thursday at Carrabec, which beat Telstar in September.

Just Imagine Coffee House

Remember to save Oct. 17 on your calendar. The Just Imagine Coffee House is pleased to offer an evening of song by Portland area artist Anni Clark.

Clark was born and raised in Yarmouth, and has been singing since she was a young girl. Local clubs, festivals, and college campuses have been showcasing her wit and artistry for over 11 years. Her two albums Maine-ly Original (1985) and Shoulda-Coulda (1989) have been heard over New England airways, and have drawn much attention to Anni's talent. Recent travels have taken her to Nashville, Tenn. and Kerrville, Texas.

Just Imagine Coffee House is held at the meeting room in the West Parish Congregational Church. Up-coming guests include the Rumford based group, Clover on Nov. 21 and Jim Gallant on Dec. 5. There will be no coffee house on Nov. 7. Admission at the door is $3 per adult and $1.50 for senior citizens or children under 12. Refreshments are available at a minimal cost.

Rotary Club notes

The Oct. 6 meeting was the monthly club assembly.

We welcomed the following guests: Norm Richard from Bridgton; Larry Wilday from Oxford Hills; Jack Twaddle from Watford, England; Harold Burns, a past district governor from Werthern New Mexico/Southern Colorado District and Kevin Zinchuk from Bethel. We said goodbye to Bill Lowther, who is returning to New Jersey for the winter.

Dr. Joe DeMarco did Rotary information and told a humorous story about the origin of Rotary according to one of his Italian relatives. Several reminders were mentioned.

Community service chairman George Larson announced that the Fall Pancake Breakfast is scheduled for Sunday, Nov. 29 at Gould Academy dining hall. It will benefit the scholarship fund.

Vocational Service Committee Chairman Ted Davis reminded the club that October is Vocational Service month. His committee is planning for the March 10 Career Day.

Dave Preble, chairman of the Citrus Sale, asked for volunteers to help with this effort. Melinda Remington, Barbie Reed, Dennis Doyon, Terry Elsemore, Bill Clough, and Robin Zinchuk came forward.

The Oct. 13 meeting is scheduled to be a "Spouse's Breakfast."

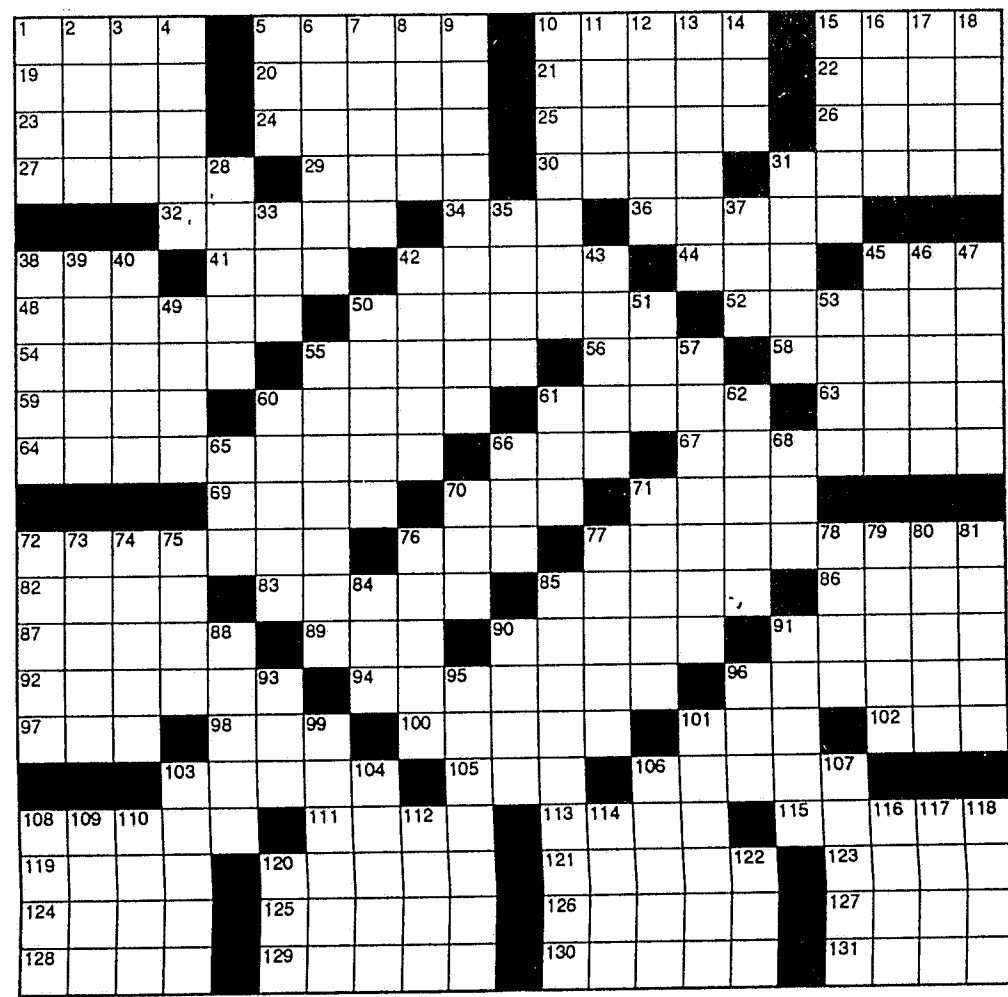

On Saturday, Oct. 24, the Bethel, Bridgton, Rumford and Oxford Hills clubs will be gathering at the Bethel Inn for the 75th anniversary celebration of the Rotary Foundation. We also will be honoring the Bruce Powell family with three Paul Harris Fellowships.

PLAYGROUND MEETING

The Bethel Area Playground Committee will meet Monday, Oct. 19 at 7:30 at the Keane residence. The member will put together an informational package and pooling information. Any questions or comments, please call Marie at 824-2608 or Marci at 824-2213.

OPEN FOR BUSINESS—Mayville Tavern food service manager John Edmonds, left, and restaurant manager Gavin Gunnigle pose with the restaurant's new sign. The pair said they provide fine dining in a casual, relaxed atmosphere. "We're trying to give our customers a consistent quality product whether they're in the pub or the dining room," Gunnigle said. "It's not fast food. Each order is individually prepared. We'd like to think everyone will be comfortable here. You can dine downstairs with your family, or go upstairs in the pub for lighter fare. We're hoping to attract skiers, but we also hope the locals will feel comfortable here." A 40-seat restaurant is located on the tavern's first floor. The menu features a mixture of meat, seafood, fowl and pasta. The tables are covered with white wax papers and crayons are placed on each table so diners can doodle while they wait for their meal. Upstairs, pub-goers are offered specialty soups, appetizers and hearty sandwiches. The pub is built for comfort, Gunnigle said. There are several small tables, a bar and lots of futons with coffee tables for guests to relax. The tavern now opens daily at 4 p.m. The dining room begins serving at 5 p.m.

Community Concepts has program to aid Head Start families

Starting this fall Community Concepts, Inc. and Tri-County Mental Health Services will collaborate to provide support for families enrolled in Head Start, according to Deborah Laurent, director of children's services at Community Concepts.

Community Concepts, Inc. is a South Paris-based nonprofit community organization with more than 25 years experience with Head Start. Its mission is to help people become self-sufficient. Head Start is a nationally-recognized comprehensive program providing low income preschool children and their families with education, health, nutrition, parent involvement, and social services.

Community Concepts operated six Head Start classrooms in Norway, Oxford, West Bethel, Rumford and Fryeburg. One hundred twenty-nine families are enrolled in Head Start this school year. Community Concepts will expand to two classrooms at its Norway Children's Center in February 1993, to bring total enrollment to 143.

Tri-County Mental Health Services (TCMH) is a Lewiston-based community mental health agency, with over 20 years providing mental health services in Oxford, Franklin and Androscoggin Counties. TCMH maintains offices in South Paris, Lewiston, Rumford, and Farmington. Its Family Center program will provide a "Building Blocks Team" to the Oxford County Head Start Program.

Community Concepts was awarded a collaborative grant from the Betterment Fund to establish this two-year project. The Betterment Fund is a New York City-based foundation. It was established by William Bingham II, who lived in Bethel prior to his death in 1955. Bingham believed in charitable purposes and was particularly interested in advancing efforts in the fields of education and rural health.

This cooperative effort between Community Concepts and Tri-County Mental Health Services has a primary goal of enhancing parent/child interaction, allowing a child to develop optimally both emotionally and educationally, and meets with the Betterment Fund's primary goals.

"All of us want our family members to work together, stay healthy and offer love and support to one another," states Laurent. Sometimes our family unit is strong in these areas and at other times with all the challenges we face today, things seem to fall apart and we need help.

If a Head Start family feels a need, a staff member from the Tri-County Building Blocks Team could make four to six visits with the family in their home to help problem solve. It is a chance for families to grow and to look at different ways of dealing with life's pressures.

"We are pleased to have the opportunity to work in partnership with Tri-County Mental Health Services for the benefit of our Head Start families," Laurent said. "Head Start and the Building Blocks project builds on the strengths of the child and the family--by getting a head start on making things better."

INDIAN MISSIONARIES

TO SPEAK AT POTLUCK

A missionary couple who have served in South India for many years will speak at a potluck supper Friday, Oct. 23, at the West Parish Congregational Church in Bethel.

Dr. Richard Riesz teaches in the physics and applied science departments of American College in Madurai, finding ways to use college resources to serve the local community and overseeing research for a government project in optics and electronics.

Joyce Riesz works with young girls from the poorer parts of Madurai, many of whom are the first in their families to learn to read. The students are lively and eager to learn, but the teachers often work without adequate room, chairs, desks, blackboards and other materials. Still, many rewards lighten the daily frustrations.

The potluck begins at 6 p.m. Everyone is invited to come, bring a casserole, salad or dessert to share, and enjoy an evening of fellowship and increased understanding.

Stecher and Horowitz to perform in Rumford

Rumford Community Concerts offers its first program of the season, Stecher & Horowitz, duo pianists, Tuesday, Oct. 20 at 7:30 p.m. at the Muskie Auditorium of the Mountain Valley School in Rumford.

One of the leading duo-piano teams in the world today, Melvin Stecher and Norman Horowitz appear in more than 70 cities annually. The internationally acclaimed duo-pianists have been responsible for creating a major revival of interest in the two-piano concert. During the past three decades, they have performed a remarkable variety of new music and traditional masterpieces for discerning musical audiences.

Traveling with two Steinway concert grands, they have performed with overwhelming success both in recital and as soloists with orchestras.

Anyone still wishing to purchase a season's Community Concert membership may come early for the concert and purchase membership at the door or they may contact the membership chairperson Shirley Fifeild, 364-8978, or Bethel representative Kay Chadbourne.

Gould Student Theater presents 'The Last Clock'

Gould Academy's Student Theater will be presenting a sampling of their Reader's Theater production, "The Last Clock," a James Thurber story which satirizes our society's obsession with time and technology. Prior to the presentation, the drama club will demonstrate various vocal and physical warm-up activities which are integrated into the rehearsals on a daily basis. Students who participate in the afternoon theater program are: Keeling Barrino, Nedda Campbell, Samantha Decker, Meredith DuPuy, Katie Hutchins, Betsy Johnson, Carlotta Martinez, Catalina Melgar, Ianna Molan, Jill Nowak, Asako Okada, David Ortiz, Jaime Powers, Erik Reppen, Camino Saez, and Sue Slack. The director and coordinator of the program is Kathy Slack Lamoreau. The date and time of the showcase has been changed to Saturday, Oct. 17 at 8:30 a.m. in Bingham Auditorium.

BBB says: Craig's fine; hold the biz cards

A third chain letter from yet another business associate, carried the same request--send a business card to a British boy, Craig Shergold, who "has a tumor and very little time to live." The forwarding address on each request is "Craig Shergold, Make-A-Wish Foundation, 3200 Perimeter Center East, Atlanta, Georgia 30346."

Fed up, the recipient of this letter called Better Business Bureau President, Robert H. Williams, and asked, "What the heck is going on with this?"

No one seems to know. "We've contacted Make-A-Wish, Children's Wish, the Atlanta Postal Inspector and the Dunwoody Postmaster," said Robert H. Williams, BBB President and CEO. "And, no one knows who started this business card solicitation."

"Save your time, paper, envelopes and postage and throw the solicitation in the wastebasket," says Williams.

Every day between 2,000 and 8,000 envelopes with Craig Shergold's name on them arrive at the Dunwoody Post Office in Atlanta, and have been for the last two years, according to Postmaster Lillian Gould.

Make-A-Wish Foundation (R) of America, the name of the solicitation letter, is headquartered at 2600 N. Central Avenue in Phoenix, Arizona and does not have a chapter in Atlanta.

"The chain letter claims that Make-A-Wish is involved and that our address is in Georgia. This is not true," stated Karla Blomberg, National President of Make-A-Wish Foundation (R) of America, in a March media release. "Our organization is not, and has never been associated with this letter. Yet our office has received literally thousands of calls diverting our staff time and resources from our mission."

Another wish-granting charity, Children's Wish Foundation International (SM) (CWF) is headquartered in Atlanta and was affiliated with Craig Shergold's wish for get well cards, but claims no connection with the current business card solicitation.

In 1989, Craig Shergold, a 12-year old diagnosed with a terminal brain tumor, wanted to be recorded in the Guinness Book of World Records for receiving the most get well cards. In 1990, after receiving 16 million plus cards his wish was fulfilled. A year later, an operation to remove the tumor was successful.

The Better Business Bureau, Inc. is a non-profit public service organization supported by member businesses and provides business Reliability Reports, consumer information brochures and mediation/arbitration programs to consumers and businesses.

ASK A LAWYER

For the past nine years my sister and I have jointly owned real estate we acquired from our parents. There are three lots in all, but only one has a house on it. Another relative lives in this house and will continue to do so. We have done nothing with the other two lots. I would like to sell or develop them, perhaps build a house for myself. My sister, however, will not agree. She says she cannot sell any of the property because the money from the sale would end her husband's entitlement to a disability allowance. Further, she says that not only can she do nothing with the property, but also that I can't do anything without her consent. I am tired of being unable to do anything with my land except pay taxes on it. Is there anything I can do?

There certainly is. Under Maine law, there are two types of co-ownership of land in which both owners have an undivided one-half interest in the entire property. You and your sister may be joint tenants, in which case when either of you dies, the other owns the entire property outright. On the other hand, you might be tenants in common, which means that each of you may leave your interest in the property to your heirs in your will. The nature of your ownership can be easily determined by examining the documents by which your parents passed the land to the two of you.

You have two ways to proceed. The first is by agreement, which might be best for the dwelling house lot. The agreement, in writing, should clearly define the boundaries of the lot, and set forth your respective responsibilities for taxes, insurance, maintenance, and repairs. It should set a definite time for sale, and a method for valuation. Arbitration is available if you cannot agree on a value. The agreement can also contain "buy-out" provisions which would allow one of you to buy the other's interest.

Assuming that the two of you cannot agree on how to dispose of the other two lots, you have the right to sue for partition. Maine law recognizes two kinds: statutory and equitable. Statutory partition results in a physical division of the property. The court will appoint commissioners to divide the property equally. If a totally equal division cannot be made, the court can equalize the halves by requiring one of you to pay a sum of money to the other.

Equitable partition need not result in a physical division of the land; the court may order it sold, and the proceeds divided between the two of you. You may also be permitted by the court to purchase your sister's share of the property.

As to your brother-in-law's disability issue: Your question does not specify the type of disability benefit involved. It should not be difficult for your lawyer to determine what, if any, property interests would reduce or eliminate the benefit. Once this is done, it may be possible to divide the property in such a way as not to jeopardize the benefit.

AIDS WALK 92
The third annual Maine AIDS WALK 92, was held in Rumford, Sunday, Oct. 4 and the participants represented the towns of Bryant Pond, Andover, Canton, Mexico, West Peru, Dixfield, Frye, and Rumford. The total proceeds from the donation sheets were $2,140.

In a brief presentation prior to the WALK, Dr. Terry MacKnight of the Mexico Walk-In Clinic pointed out that the World Health Organization estimates that there are 12 million people infected with HIV, 50 percent of whom are women.

After the WALK, Linda Blackman and Elaine Michaud, the duo "Clover," sang to the accompaniment of keyboard and guitar, and refreshments were provided by women of the Mexico Congregational Church.

Included in this year's WALK was a large representation of students from surrounding high schools and middle schools. Seven T-shirts were awarded to those walkers who collected a minimum of $100 in donations.

THOUGHTS FROM THE Pastor's Study

The Bethel Area Clergy Association, with the help of pastors of surrounding churches, brings you these meditations. Not based on any set theme, they will be individual for each pastor. It is hoped you will find in these words, comfort and help for your daily life.

The psalm for this coming Sunday is Psalm 121, a familiar favorite which begins:

"I lift up my eyes to the hills; from where is my help to come? My help comes from the Lord, the maker of heaven and earth."

This is a wonderful time of year to raise our eyes to the hills to behold the splendor of autumn colors. Surely God's hand is visible in this beauty.

It is also a time when many are looking for help for one reason or another. When we say that our help comes from the Lord, what do we mean? While God may not find us a job or return a loved one, God can give us the strength and the confidence to persevere. God can comfort and sustain us. One of the saints of the church, Julian of Norwich, has said, "thou canst see for thyself that all manner of things shall be well." That is the kind of assurance that can lead us to new hope and anticipation when we are discouraged.

The psalmist goes on to say: "The Lord shall preserve you from all evil; it is he who shall keep you safe."

This is not the kind of security we find in things temporal, but an undegirding security in the eternal. This security is available to all.

When you raise your eyes to the hills, remember that your help comes from the Lord.

Rev. Gwyneth Bohr, Minister
Monthly Episcopal House Church
